Russiable Guide

The essential guide to traveling in Russia today

IRENA DOMINGO

Up to Date

Visas, payments, borders and the internet in today's Russia.

Step by Step

Planning in ten steps, from home to the day you arrive.

On the Ground

Itineraries for Moscow and St. Petersburg and a Trans-Siberian guide.

Contents

Starting Point 1

How to Use This Guide 3
What's New in This Edition 6
Quick Guide to the Current Situation 7

PART I
Trip Planning 24

Step 1 Border Status 26
1 Air Borders (International Airports) 28
2 Land Borders 34
2.1 Estonia and Latvia 35
2.2 Kaliningrad 49
2.3 Norway 59
2.4 Belarus 67
2.5 Georgia, Azerbaijan and Kazakhstan 70
2.6 China and Mongolia 83
2.7 Traveling to Russia by Car, Motorcycle, Camper, or Caravan 84
2.8 The Best Telegram Groups with Real-Time Information 97
3 Maritime Borders (Ferries and Cruises) 104
4 The Border Interview: Who Gets It, What They Ask and How Long It Takes 105

Step 2 Decide Your Travel Route 113
1 Best Time to Travel 115
2 Public Holidays and Celebrations 119
3 The Duration of the Trip 126
4 The Main Travel Routes 128
5 Designing the Itinerary: Examples 132

Step 3 Buy Plane Tickets 134
1 How to Book Flights to Russia 136
2 Mixed Combinations (Flight + Train/Bus) 143

Step 4 Purchase Travel Medical Insurance 146
1 Travel Medical Insurance: Requirements and Minimum Coverage 148
2 OSAGO Insurance (for Car or Motorcycle) 152
3 How to Buy the Insurance Step by Step 155
4 Taking Medicines to Russia 159

Step 5 Visa Application Process 164
1 Electronic Visa (e-Visa) 166
2 Regular Visa and Invitation (Visa Support) 182
2.1 Tourist Visa 184
2.2 Private Visa (to Visit Family or Friends) 202
2.3 Shared Values Visa 207
3 Visa-Free Russia 215
4 Special Permits 223
4.1 Visa for Traveling by Car, Motorcycle, Camper, or Caravan 224
4.2 Border or Closed Cities 227
4.3 Climbing Mount Elbrus 232
5 Dual Citizenship: Which Passport to Use 235

Step 6 Book Accommodation 240
1 Types of Accommodation 242
2 Where to Stay: Recommended Neighborhoods 248
2.1 Moscow 249
2.2 St. Petersburg 257
3 How to Book Accommodation at the Best Price 264

Step 7 Domestic Transportation 273
1 Russian Trains 275
2 Buses 287
3 Traveling Between Moscow and St. Petersburg 290
4 How to Buy Train Tickets at the Best Price 296

Step 8 Rubles and Payments in Russia 307
1 Ruble Exchange and Travel Budget 309
2 How to Pay in Russia 316
3 Pay in Russia (Prepaid MIR Card) 323
4 YooMoney 336
5 T-Bank 342
6 How to Send Money to Russia 350

Step 9 Online Bookings in Advance 359
1 Guided Tours 361
2 Museums 365
3 Shows 366
3.1 Opera and Ballet 367
3.2 Russian Circus 375
3.3 Russian Folklore 379
3.4 Sports Shows: Football and Hockey 383
4 Restaurants: Russian Cuisine and How to Book a Table 384

Step 10 Internet, eSIM, and Essential Apps 399
1 Getting a SIM Card (or eSIM) 401
2 Internet and VPN 414
3 Essential Mobile Apps 428
4 GPS and Offline Maps 435
5 How to Make Video Calls: Alternatives to WhatsApp and Telegram 440
6 How to Remove Russia's 24-Hour Internet Block with a Foreign eSIM 448
7 Phone Checks at the Russian Border: What the Law Says and How to Prepare Your Phone 453

PART II
Moscow and St. Petersburg 459

Day 0 The Flight, Arrival at the Airport, and Customs Procedures 461
The History of Russia and the USSR (Told in 5 Minutes) 463
Which Brands Left Russia (and What They're Called Now) 473
1 Arrival at the Airport and Immigration and Customs Procedures 480
2 Transfer from the Airport to Your Accommodation 495
2.1 Domodedovo 496
2.2 Sheremetyevo 500
2.3 Vnukovo 503
2.4 Zhukovsky 506
3 Book a Taxi in Russia 509
4 Arrival at the Accommodation and Registration 512

Day 1 Moscow: Red Square and Surroundings 516
Introduction to Moscow 518
Public Transportation in Moscow 519
9:00 a.m. Walk Through Red Square 527
10:00 a.m. The Moscow Kremlin: The Armory and Cathedral Square 529
2:00 p.m. GUM Department Store 539
4:00 p.m. Saint Basil's Cathedral 546
5:30 p.m. Zaryadye Park 555
7:00 p.m. The Bolshoi Theater and Tverskaya Street 563

Day 2 Moscow: The Tretyakov Gallery, Arbat Street, and Gorky Park 564
10:00 a.m. State Tretyakov Gallery 566
1:00 p.m. Cathedral of Christ the Savior 575
2:00 p.m. Arbat Street 582
4:30 p.m. The Moscow Metro 593
6:00 p.m. Gorky Park and a Cruise on the Moskva River 603

Day 3 Moscow: Novodevichy and Moscow's Skyscrapers 620
10:00 a.m. Novodevichy Convent and Cemetery 622
5:00 p.m. Moscow State University and Sparrow Hills 631
7:00 p.m. Moscow City 640

Day 4 Moscow: Lenin, the Cold War, and Matryoshkas 648
10:00 a.m. Lenin's Mausoleum 650
11:30 a.m. Bunker-42 or Museum of the Cold War 658
3:00 p.m. Cosmonautics Museum and VDNH 660
6:00 p.m. Izmailovo Market 667

Day 5 Moscow: Kolomenskoye, Tsaritsyno, and an Evening at the Opera 677
10:00 a.m. Kolomenskoye 679
3:00 p.m. Tsaritsyno 688
7:00 p.m. The Bolshoi Theater and the Novaya Opera 696

Day 6 St. Petersburg: The Hermitage, the Cathedrals, and the Canals 698
Introduction to St. Petersburg 700
Public Transportation in St. Petersburg 701
9:30 a.m. Arrival at Palace Square 711
11:00 a.m. Visit to the Hermitage 716
4:00 p.m. Church of the Savior on Spilled Blood 724
5:30 p.m. Kazan Cathedral 730
6:30 p.m. Canal Cruise 732

Day 7 St. Petersburg: Peter and Paul Fortress and the Drawbridges 734
10:00 a.m. The Peter and Paul Fortress 736
3:00 p.m. The Cruiser Aurora 749
4:00 p.m. State Russian Museum 750
7:30 p.m. St. Isaac's Cathedral 752
1:00 a.m. Night Cruise to See the Drawbridges 759

Day 8 St. Petersburg: The Gardens, Fountains, and Palaces of Peterhof 768
9:30 a.m. Peterhof 770
8:30 p.m. The Lakhta Center 779

Day 9 St. Petersburg: Yusupov Palace, New Holland Island, and the Fabergé Museum 783
10:00 a.m. Yusupov Palace 785
12:00 p.m. New Holland Island 793
2:00 p.m. Walk Across the Pedestrian Bridges 800
4:30 p.m. Fabergé Museum 802
7:00 p.m. Evening Walk Along Nevsky Prospekt 810

Day 10 St. Petersburg: The Catherine Palace and the Mariinsky Theater 824
10:00 a.m. The Catherine Palace and Gardens 826
7:00 p.m. Opera at the Mariinsky Theater 834

PART III
The Trans-Siberian 836

Preparing the Trans-Siberian 838
1 The Trans-Siberian Today: The Route and the Essentials 840
2 Planning the Route: Season, Direction, Stops and Itinerary 843
3 Trains, Classes, Tickets and Prices 846
4 Before You Board: Checklist 852
5 Life on Board 857

Stop 1 Kazan 860
1 Things to Do in Kazan 861

2 The Kazan Kremlin . . . 873
3 What to Eat in Kazan . . . 884

Stop 2 Yekaterinburg 893
What to Do in Yekaterinburg . . . 894

Stop 3 Novosibirsk 904
What to See in Novosibirsk . . . 905

Stop 4 Irkutsk, Lake Baikal and Ulan-Ude 914
Lake Baikal: Irkutsk, Olkhon and Ulan-Ude . . . 915

Stop 5 Vladivostok 926
Vladivostok: What to See and Where to Go Next . . . 927

PART IV
The Return 936

1 Before You Go: Loose Ends . . . 938
2 Leaving Russia: Airport, Checks and Customs . . . 941
3 If You Come Back: Beyond Moscow and St. Petersburg . . . 945

PART V
Appendices 948

1 What to Pack . . . 949
2 The Cyrillic Alphabet and Basic Russian Phrases . . . 952
About the Author . . . 955

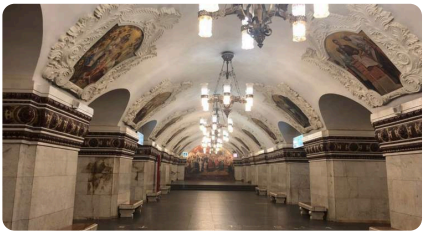

Starting Point

Russia is still the country of St. Basil's domes, of palaces along the Neva and of trains that cross Siberia all the way to the Pacific. What has changed is how you get there, how you pay and how you stay connected. That's what this guide is about: sorting it all out from home, in the right order, so that when you land all you have to do is enjoy it.

The Best of the Trip

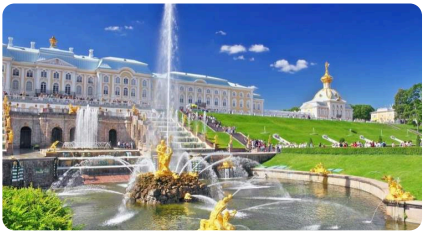

Red Square and the Kremlin (p. 527)
The heart of Moscow and a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 1990. Day 1.

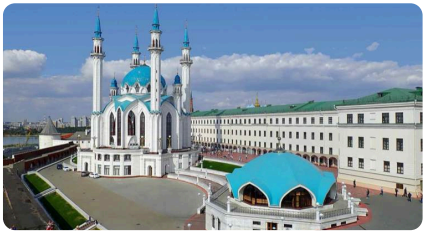

The Moscow Metro (p. 593)
Stalin's "Palace of the People": marble, mosaics and chandeliers underground. Day 2.

The Hermitage (p. 716)
One of the world's great museums, in the tsars' Winter Palace. Day 6.

Peterhof (p. 770)
The largest collection of fountains in the world, at the tsars' summer residence. Day 8.

Kazan (p. 861)
The only Tatar kremlin in the world, one night by train from Moscow. Stop 1 of the Trans-Siberian.

Lake Baikal (p. 915)
The great jewel of Siberia and, for almost everyone, the highlight of the Trans-Siberian. Stop 4.

Before You Start

1. How to Use This Guide (p. 3): how the guide is organized and where to start, depending on where you are in your planning.
2. Quick Guide to the Current Situation (p. 7): Russia today at a glance, and what readers who have just come back say.

How to Use This Guide

- Start Wherever You Are
- The Guide in Five Parts
- Three Formats, One Trip
- Write to Me

Russia can be visited today. What has changed is not the country, but the way you get there, pay and stay connected. With this guide you sort all of that out from home, in the right order, so that when you land all you have to do is enjoy it.

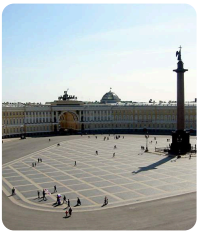

Start Wherever You Are

If...	Go to...
You're still deciding whether to go	Quick Guide to the Current Situation (p. 7), the next chapter
You've decided and have dates	Part I (p. 24): start with Step 1 (p. 26) and follow the timeline
You want to know what has changed lately	Recent Important Updates, in the web version of the guide
You're already in Russia	Part II (p. 459): open the day you're on
You're going to take the Trans-Siberian	Part III (p. 836)

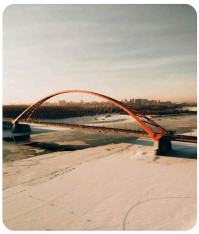

The Guide in Five Parts

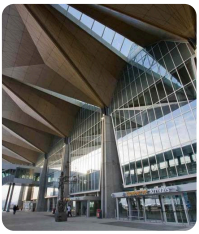

Part I. Trip Planning (p. 24)
Ten steps with a timeline, from 90 to 10 days before you leave: borders, flights, insurance, visa, accommodation, money and internet.

Part II. Moscow and St. Petersburg (p. 459)
A ten-day itinerary, hour by hour, starting with your arrival at the airport.

Part III. The Trans-Siberian (p. 836)
From Moscow to Vladivostok, with stops in Kazan, Yekaterinburg, Novosibirsk and Lake Baikal.

Part IV. The Return (p. 936)
Leaving the country, the checks and customs, and ideas for your next trip.

I

PART I

Trip Planning

Planning a trip to Russia takes a bit more preparation than other destinations, but if you follow a logical order it's a simple process. This first part brings together the ten steps worth taking before you leave, from checking the state of the borders and choosing the best time to travel to getting your visa, booking accommodation and preparing your payment methods.
Each step includes practical recommendations based on the country's current situation and on the experience of thousands of travelers who have already made this journey, along with how far in advance to do each task, so you can follow them like a checklist.

4 The Border Interview: Who Gets It, What They Ask and How Long It Takes

- What the "interview" is and how it differs from a normal check
- The data: what you've told me, crossing by crossing
- Where you cross
- Your passport and profile: as important as the crossing, or more
- What they ask
- Do they check your phone during the interview?
- How long it takes and what happens next
- How to prepare so it goes quickly

No, the Russian border interview isn't something everyone gets, and it isn't pure luck either. A lot depends on who you are: the odds go up sharply if you're British, American or Canadian, if you have any link to Ukraine or a Russian partner, if you travel to Russia very often, or if you're the only foreigner on the bus or the flight. And a lot depends on where you cross: at Koidula and Luhamaa, the crossings in southern Estonia, almost every foreigner gets one, while at St Petersburg's Pulkovo airport most people are through in minutes.

I went through the accounts of more than 90 readers and around 80 reports from Telegram groups to see what keeps repeating: who gets interviewed, what they're asked, how long it takes and whether they check your phone. It isn't a study with any statistical value, just a sample of real experiences, but the patterns are quite clear.

It's probably the question I get most from readers: "Will they interrogate me?" Fair enough, because the accounts you send me show every kind of case: a Spanish reader spent three and a half hours in a back room at Ivangorod, while

Day 1

1

DAY 1 · MOSCOW AND ST. PETERSBURG

Moscow: Red Square and Surroundings

Your first day in Moscow, in the heart of the city: Red Square, the Kremlin, GUM, St. Basil's Cathedral and Zaryadye Park, and in the evening the Bolshoi and Tverskaya Street. Before you start, two chapters to get your bearings and to get around.

AT A GLANCE

- Where: the whole day in the historic center, around Red Square and the Kremlin.
- Watch the closing days: the Kremlin closes on Thursdays; St. Basil's, on the first Wednesday of every month.
- Buy in advance: your Kremlin tickets, and avoid weekends and public holidays if you can. For the Bolshoi, see "Opera and Ballet (p. 367)" (Step 9).
- Bring rubles in cash: St. Basil's official website only accepts MIR cards; at the box office you pay in cash.
- Free: Red Square, GUM and Zaryadye Park with its floating bridge.
- Offline: GPS often fails in the center. Have Yandex Maps downloaded.

Map of the Kremlin grounds with the entrances marked eas of the grounds are closed to the public.

- It's home to one of the most important museum complexes in the world: the Armory Chamber, the cathedrals of Cathedral Square, the Patriarch's Palace and the Ivan the Great Bell Tower.

It has been a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 1990, together with Red Square. And one important thing: the Kremlin is not Red Square. A lot of people get the two confused. Red Square sits right next to it, separated by the Kremlin wall, and it's a free public space.

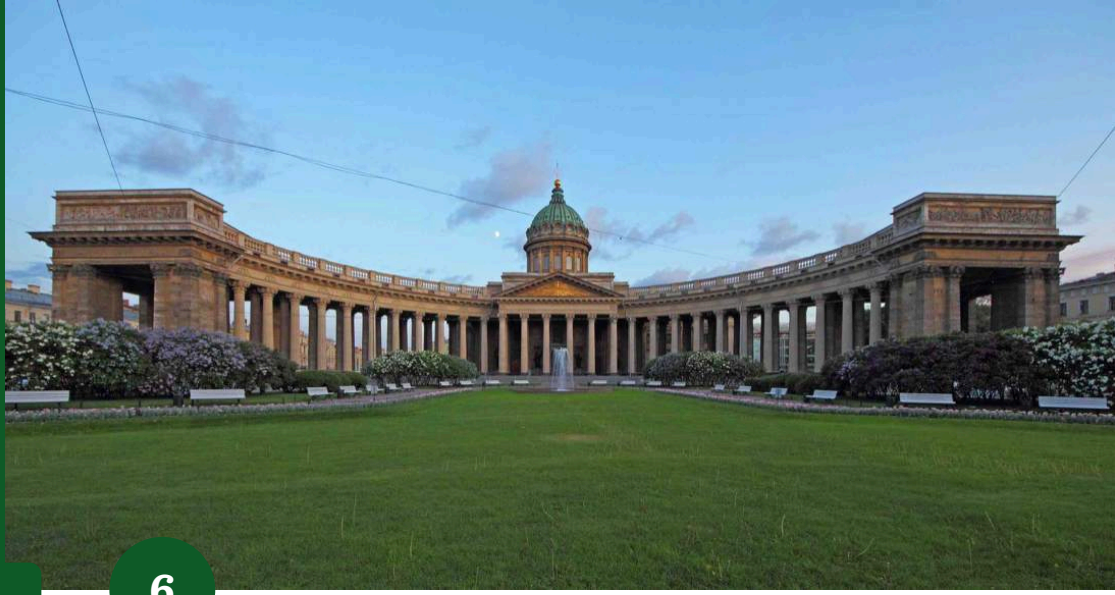

2. What real visitors say

Before getting into the detail, here's the map with real reviews from Yandex Maps (Russia's equivalent of Google Maps), where you can read reviews in Russian and translate them with your browser. The Kremlin has a 5.0-out-of-5 rating with nearly 28,000 ratings and over 2,000 written reviews:

Map
Moscow Kremlin
Open in Yandex Maps

A summary of what visitors say

- The most positive comments: the atmosphere, the architectural grandeur, the ancient icons in the cathedrals, the Tsar Cannon and Tsar Bell, the views, the Tainitsky Garden with its roses and fountain.
- The most common complaints: the ticket prices, the queues during peak season, the strict security (you can't walk just anywhere – guards blow whistles if you step off the marked

6

DAY 6 · MOSCOW AND ST. PETERSBURG

St. Petersburg: The Hermitage, the Cathedrals, and the Canals

Your first day in St. Petersburg: Palace Square, the Hermitage, the Church of the Savior on Spilled Blood, Kazan Cathedral and a canal cruise. Before you start, two chapters to get your bearings and to get around.

III

PART III

The Trans-Siberian

The Trans-Siberian is Russia's great train journey: 9,288 kilometers from Moscow to Vladivostok, across the Urals, Siberia and Lake Baikal to the Pacific. This part of the guide is for travelers who want to go beyond Moscow and Saint Petersburg and ride the route, in full or in stages.

The first five chapters explain how to prepare it: which routes run today, how to plan the itinerary, which train and class to choose, how to buy tickets, what to sort out before boarding and what life on board is like. The chapters that follow cover the main stops, from west to east: Kazan, Yekaterinburg, Novosibirsk, Irkutsk and Lake Baikal with Ulan-Ude, and Vladivostok.

Many of the practical matters (the visa, insurance, money, getting online) are the same as for any trip to Russia and are explained in Part I. Here the guide points you to those chapters and only goes deeper into what changes when the trip is the Trans-Siberian.

Where to try it: there's a chain called Kystyby Tatar-food (with a branch on Bauman Street) that reimagines it as fast food, with creative fillings and colored dough. For the classic version: any spot in the Tugan Avylym complex or Dom Chaya. Between 90 and 250 rubles depending on the place.

3. Peremech (перемяч): the round, fried cousin

If echpochmak is triangular and baked, peremech (also called belyash in its Russian version) is its round, flat, deep-fried cousin. Minced meat and onion on the inside, fluffy dough on the outside, a small hole in the center and a little pocket of hot juice inside. Fresh out of the fryer, it's one of the best street snacks in the country.

A practical note: peremech is very greasy (it's deep-fried), so if you're not used to it, don't overdo it. Two is plenty to feel completely full. And watch out when you take the first bite — the juice inside is boiling. Local trick: bite a small piece off the edge first to let the steam out before biting properly.

Where to try it: the street kiosks on Bauman Street, without exception. They're fried right in front of you. Price: 100–150 rubles.

4. Elesh (өлеш): the round chicken pastry

Elesh means "portion" in Tatar. It's a round baked pastry, similar to a sealed empanada, typically filled with chicken and potato. It's the alternative to echpochmak for anyone who doesn't eat red meat, and it's also usually served alongside a hot broth. Juicier than echpochmak, with slightly thinner dough.

Where to try it: any Tatar café will have it. Dom Chaya at Bauman 64 does a version with homemade broth for around 280 rubles.

5. Toqmaç (токмач): homemade noodle soup

Toqmaç is the traditional Tatar soup: a chicken or beef broth, clear and clean, with hand-rolled noodles (cut very thin, almost like egg pasta) added at the end and boiled for just a couple of minutes. It sounds simple, and it is — but getting the noodles right is an art that only lifelong Tatar grandmothers truly master.

That was just a glimpse

You've flicked through 16 individual pages. The full Russiable Guide has 961 and takes you from the moment you decide to go until you're back home:

- Trip planning. Ten steps with a timeline: borders, visa, flights, insurance, accommodation, trains, rubles and payments, advance bookings, eSIM and VPN.
- Moscow and St. Petersburg. A ten-day itinerary, hour by hour, starting with your arrival at the airport.
- The Trans-Siberian. From Moscow to Vladivostok, with stops in Kazan, Yekaterinburg, Novosibirsk and Lake Baikal.
- The return. Leaving the country, the checks and customs.
- Appendices. What to pack, the Cyrillic alphabet and basic phrases.

€29.95 VAT included · one-time payment

In PDF, ePUB and a web version, with all future updates included. And if something isn't clear, you write to me: I read it myself and I answer myself.

Buy the full guide

or at russiable.com/russia-travel-guide

RUSSIABLE GUIDE

“Everything I’ve learned from traveling in Russia, gathered in one place and constantly updated.”

THE ROUTE THROUGH THE GUIDE

- Starting Point — p. 1
- I Trip Planning — p. 24
- II Moscow and St. Petersburg — p. 459
- III The Trans-Siberian — p. 836
- IV The Return — p. 936
- V Appendices — p. 948

Russiable

The Author
Irena Domingo has lived between Russia and Spain, and that double belonging is where this guide comes from.

guide.russiable.com
Updated October 18, 2026